

Prenatal service third-party liability change

Summary: The Bipartisan Budget Act of 2018 made changes to the coordination of benefits process for prenatal services, which formerly received special treatment under the Medicaid third-party liability requirements. The act directs Medicaid to apply the standard coordination of benefits rule when processing claims for prenatal services. In accordance, Amerigroup District of Columbia, Inc. will implement these changes effective October 18, 2019.

What is the impact of this change?

Amerigroup will no longer pay and chase claims for prenatal services. In accordance with the Bipartisan Budget Act of 2018, prenatal services are now subject to standard coordination of benefits procedures. Additional information on this legislation can be found at <https://www.medicaid.gov/federal-policy-guidance/downloads/cib060118.pdf>.

In situations where third-party liability is likely, Amerigroup will return a claim to the provider noting the party that Amerigroup believes is responsible for payment. If the provider bills the liable third party and a balance remains or the claim is denied payment for a substantive reason, the provider can submit a claim to Amerigroup for payment of the balance, up to the maximum Medicaid payment amount established for the service.
